ORDERS ISSUED TO GET RECRUITS

Contemplating the Possibility of War.

SUCH ARE LATEST ADVICES

From War Department—Recruits Not Sufficient to Justify Demands.

ENLISTMENTS ARE NUMEROUS

Capt. Oliver H. Dockery, Jr., United States Army, the recruiting officer for the Northern Kentucky and Southern Indiana district, whose headquarters are at 519 West Green street in this city, has received from the War Department at Washington the most urgent orders to use every possible effort to obtain more recruits to fill up the army.

The orders are the most direct and positive that have been issued to the recruiting officers since 1898, just before the Spanish-American War. One quotation from the order is as follows:

"Recruits are not now received in sufficient quantities to maintain the army at its present strength for emergencies. It is therefore important that recruiting be developed to the utmost extent."

Capt. Dockery does not think that it means anything of a war-like nature, nor the possibility of trouble, which the general staff of the army may be preparing in time to meet. He thinks it is simply a movement to fill up to their full strength a number of regiments which will be sent to the Philippine Islands, Hawaii and Alaska. But there exists a general impression that possibly on account of the trouble along the Mexican border, or probably the alert attitude of Japan, the War Department forecasts a rising war cloud in the political horizon.

This, in connection with the secret emergency report recently submitted by the Secretary of War to the House of Representatives, has created general public comment as to the meaning of it all. The report to Congress was withdrawn and its publication was suppressed, but it leaked out that among the things mentioned was the fact that the United States at present is not prepared to prevent an invasion on the Pacific coast.

As a result of the extra efforts put forth by the local recruiting office in compliance with these very urgent orders, the output of the Louisville district increased from twenty-seven enlistments in November to seventy-one in December, and promise a proportionally large increase in January. The least war talk or chance to see active service always stirs up the patriotic fighting boys of old Kentucky.—(Louisville Times.)

VACCINATION COMPULSORY IN CHRISTIAN COUNTY

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 14.—Fearing an epidemic of smallpox in the northern part of Christian county, where a number of cases have developed during the past week, the Christian county board of health today passed a resolution making vaccination compulsory in the affected district.

The secretary of the board, Dr. Walter A. Lackey, left this afternoon for North Christian, and, aided by local physicians, will make a house-to-house canvass to vaccinate every person who cannot show a healthy scar.

SPECIAL NOTICE
In regard to
OBITUARIES, RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT, &c.

The Hartford Herald has adopted a new rule in regard to Obituaries, Resolutions of Respect, Cards of Thanks, &c., whether written at the behest of lodges, churches or individuals, and that is, we shall charge at the rate of two cents per line for all such articles, except obituary poetry, which will be one cent per word, straight. This is the smallest rate we charge for anything and is only one-fifth of our regular rate. The amount, in cash or stamps, must accompany each article, or it will not be printed. Six words average a line in ordinary reading and every separate character or initial letter counts as a word. The heading and the signature both count one line each, even if they are only a word or two. All obituary poetry, straight through, one cent per word.

Our old rule in regard to Obituaries, &c. was 150 words free, balance a cent a word, but this did not prove satisfactory because the bounds were almost always overstepped, and we have been forced to adopt this new rule, which is in effect from now on. Contributors will please remember.

VARIABLE VOTING IN AN OHIO COUNTY

(New York Mail.)
The revelations of wholesale vote-selling in an Ohio county recall a colloquy said to have taken place between a political scout and a farmer into whose territory he had driven. Here is the dialogue:

"How many doubtful voters in this district?"

"Bout 400."

"How many men likely to vote the Democratic ticket?"

"Bout 400."

"How many likely to vote the Republican ticket?"

"Bout 400."

"How many purchasable votes here?"

"Bout 400."

"You don't say! By the way, what is the total vote here?"

"Bout 400."—(New York Mail.)

SILENCE OF 50 YEARS

BROKEN AT DEATH'S HOUR

English, Ind., Jan. 14.—Breaking a silence of 50 years, Philip Burkhardt, aged 91 years, to-day requested to see his children. A few hours later he died of heart failure.

Burkhardt had been insane more than 50 years, it is said. It is related by the near relatives of Burkhardt that his insanity was the result of fear of witches. He never issued from his home at night without an escort.

His refusal to speak in the last 50 years puzzles physicians.

JUST AS MUCH LOST AS EVER

Is North Pole, According to Peary.

VERY FEW FACTS OBTAINED

By Congressional Committee—Peary Wanted All Glory to Himself.

A CHARACTERISTIC INTERVIEW

Washington, Jan. 13.—Admitting that the north pole is just as much lost as ever, and that all future attempts to find it must be independent enterprises, unaided by his own work, Captain Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, answered a cross fire of questions at a hearing before the House Committee on Naval Affairs, to-day.

He told how he wanted the glory of the Polar achievement for himself, declining to let any member of his expedition, other than the negro Henson, go on the last dash with him, how his publishing contracts had precluded him from testifying before the committee last spring, and how members of his expedition had been prohibited from writing about the trip.

Captain Peary was asked to throw light on why, as a naval officer, he made no report to the Navy Department. Mr. Roberts asked him if it was not customary for an officer to report on matters for which he was detailed.

Captain Peary said he had made some report to the Coast and Geodetic Survey and had advised the Navy Department of that fact. It was his impression that the superintendent of the survey had made a report to the navy.

Pressed by Mr. Roberts, Captain Peary said there was a letter of his on file somewhere asking secrecy for his written report to the survey as to soundings.

"Why, being detailed to get certain information for the Government, did you ask the Government not to use this information?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I would rather not give the information except to the committee," replied Captain Peary, who objected to testifying in the presence of newspaper representatives. He was given permission to file his reason in writing.

"Why did you not take white members of your party with you on the final stage of your trip northward, so there might be creditable corroborative evidence?" asked Representative Roberts, of Massachusetts.

"In the first place," replied Captain Peary, "I have always made the final spurt, with one exception, when Lee was with me, with one man and the Eskimos, because the man I took with me (Henson) was more effective for combined demands of extended work than any white man."

"The pole was something to which I have devoted my life, for which I had gone through such hell as I hope no man in this room will ever experience, and I did not feel that I should divide it with a young man who had not the right to it that I had."

Captain Peary was asked by Mr. Roberts if any injunction of secrecy had been made as to what members of the expedition might say. He replied that members of his party were not free to write and lecture after their return, except with his written permission, explaining that they were paid for their services.

Mr. Macon, of Arkansas, interjected that Captain Peary was also paid for his services through the salary paid him as a naval officer.

Captain Peary, replying to repeated question as to the results of his Arctic trip, said that he had not yet prepared such a chart that would enable any one to follow in his footsteps to the pole, but he imagined that he had data by which he could prepare such a chart.

He said the position of the north pole could be determined just the same as the equator, but the trouble was the comparative low altitude of the sun, which never gets higher than 22 1/2 degrees above the horizon. For that reason ordinary observation could not be relied on with accuracy.

The committee will continue the hearing of Captain Peary to-morrow, when Representative Macon of Arkansas, is expected to question him at length.

HOW CHAMP CLARK GOT HIS FAMOUS COGNOMEN

The next Speaker's full name is James Beauchamp Clark. When he went out into the world he discovered that Clark was the sixth most common name in America, and that James was nearly as prevalent as John or the meases. James B. also was curiously numerous, and James B. Clark far from unusual. In the young man's town was a man of that name who used to get his letters and throw them away. This was very annoying. So the future statesman dropped James and became Beauchamp Clark. Beauchamp is a well-known name out West. They pronounce it "Beecham," like that of the Englishman who makes pills. Now, one of the incoming Speaker's hobbies is accurate expression, and it irritated him to be called Beecham, when he should have been called Beauchamp. Painstaking investigation finally convinced him that only a Frenchman could say it properly, anyway, so he made up his mind to drop one of the syllables, and after due consideration he picked "Beau" as the one to go. Since then he has been plain Champ Clark, and is so designated almost invariably. We hear of Representative Underwood, Congressman Payne, &c., but never of Representative or Congressman Clark. It is always Champ Clark, as if hyphenated, with accent on the Clark.—(Harper's Weekly.)

HE KNEW THE KIND AND THE PLEA WAS GRANTED

Plaintiff in Divorce Suit—Nor is that all, Your Honor; my wife wears one of those French batiste waist.

The Court (getting interested)—One of those where you have to hold one side of the button with your teeth while you push the other side through with your fingers?

Plaintiff—Yes, Your Honor; one of those kind where you have to warp one hand over the other—

The Court (illustrating)—This way.

Plaintiff (nodding)—That's it, Your Honor.

The Court—And then maybe you don't get it buttoned.

Plaintiff—Exactly. You know that kind, Your Honor.

The Court—I should say I do. The plea is granted.—(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

WERE BORN TOGETHER

PLAN TO CUT APART

New Orleans, La., Jan. 11.—Two Filipino children, bound together by tissue very much in the same way as the Siamese twins, have been brought to this city by Dr. J. H. Dunning, of Los Angeles, and J. R. Louis, of Manila, with the view of consulting surgeons, to consider the question of separating them.

The children are 2 1/2 years old and seem to be two entirely separate entities, the connecting portion being merely a membrane that seems to be very elastic. One got the measles, which did not effect the other.

Both were vaccinated at the same time. It "took" on one but not the other. Surgeons here have so far refused to cut them apart.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

DIDN'T DIE BY HIS OWN HAND

Latest in Thompson Murder Mystery.

GUN FOUND BESIDE HIS BODY

Hadn't Been Fired for Months—Officials Can't Find the Motive.

THOMPSON'S SON IS ARRESTED

Providence, Ky., Jan. 13.—The inquiry authorized by the county and conducted by the county judge and Attorney Bennett into the murder on December 26 of H. T. Thompson, prominent merchant, has ended.

It was stated by the county attorney that the hearing had developed a clue which would be followed further, but that evidence would not warrant an arrest. It was learned that the theory of a "woman in the case" is the new development of greatest interest in this murder which is without a parallel in Western Kentucky.

The close examination of the pistol found beside Thompson's body, evidently left by the murderer to strengthen the suicide theory, shows that this weapon did not cause Thompson's death. The gun is rusty, the three empty cartridges in it are mildewed, and the burn powder is hard. The barrel is dirty inside and full of rusty projections and dust which have not been disturbed in months. County Attorney Bennett is emphatic in stating that, although the pistol belonged to Thompson and was found beside his body, yet it was not fired on December 26, the day of his death, and had not been discharged for probably three months to a year previously.

That the pistol was merely placed near the body in order to avert suspicion, seems beyond question. Reasoning from this fact, it seems certain that the shot which killed Thompson was fired from in front and struck above the eye. That this was the first and fatal shot is proved by the fact that his hat was pulled below the bullet wound, but there was no hole in the hat.

It appears reasonable that when the murderer found that Thompson's pistol had three empty chambers, he decided to fire two more shots into the head of the already dead man. As Thompson's face was lying next to the ground, the murderer did not take the trouble to turn it over, but fired twice into the back of the head, at close range. This was where the slayer bungled, and in his haste to make suicide appear, left indisputable evidence of murder. For, the pistol was held so close in firing the shots into the back of Thompson's head that the hair was powder burned. There is, however, no powder burn visible about the wound in the forehead.

While the murderer left three bullet holes in Thompson's head, to correspond with the three discharged cartridges in Thompson's pistol, the manner of making these wounds in itself is proof positive of murder. Every official who has investigated the case proclaims the undoubted fact that Thompson was most foully murdered.

The effort made to throw the hint of suicide over the death of Thompson is regarded as important. It shows that robbery was not the motive. It likewise shows that there was some hidden reason for the killing, a reason which the officials have not yet been able to ascertain. Arguing from all these facts, the officials believe that the criminal was some one close to and in the confidence of the murdered merchant, and that the slayer is still in Providence. There has been no one missing from here since the tragedy.

The widow of the murdered man has offered a reward of $250 and citizens are also raising a purse to be offered. The county, city and State will also post rewards. Before the end of the week at least $1,500 will be posted for anyone who can bring the criminal to justice.

Asked to-night if he was satisfied as to the innocence of Thompson's son, who discovered his father's body but did not go to him, County Attorney Bennett said that in the absence of proof to break down an alibi, the son would not be put under suspicion. It has been regarded as strange by many that the son should ride out into the country and spy his father's body on a deserted hillside and return to the city for help before going to see whether or not it was his father's body. Why the son did not go into the woods and investigate; why he returned to the city before he knew his father was dead; why he did not find out if the parent was merely wounded and probably in need of immediate aid, are questions, which, while they baffle the officials, yet are not regarded as pointing to guilt, because young Thompson had raised an alibi. The clerks in the store state that young Thompson came to the store within five minutes after his father left, and was there until the search for Mr. Thompson began.

"There is hardly enough of the 'woman in the case' theory to call it a clue as yet," said County Attorney Bennett. "I believe that when the large reward is offered that the murderer will be apprehended."

Says Son Knows Father's Slayer.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 14.—Thomas Thompson, aged eighteen years, son of Henry Thompson, who was murdered at Providence, Ky., on December 26, was arrested to-day by Sheriff Vaughan, of Webster county, charged with guilty knowledge of the crime. The prisoner was taken to Dixon the county seat, and is being held under guard.

His examining trial is set for Tuesday before Judge Browning.

NAMING THEM FOR THE "BONESKULLS"

Washington, Jan. 8.—It started at the White House the other day and from that central point of distribution has been carried into every department in Washington as well as to both branches of Congress.

No statesman is immune. Its subtle appeal to one's personal vanity is so certain that the wisest fall victims. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop is the latest.

"I see," said a correspondent calling upon Mr. Winthrop Saturday, "that the Post-office Department has named a Massachusetts office after you."

"Ah," said the genial Assistant Secretary, "Beekman or Winthrop?"

"No, Marblehead," was the reply.
